Times Editor Visits Coastal

Mr. Bryant gives flycasting lessons as Dr. Millus looks on.

The outdoor editor of the New York Times, Nelson Bryant, spoke to a combined class of English students here Wednesday morning. Mr. Bryant was introduced to the students by Dr. Don Millus who has been acting as his host while he has been in the GZrand Strand area.

Mr. Bryant spoke to the class about the profession of journalism. He has published over thirty articles in major magazines and has written three novels. He writes three columns a week for the Times pertaining to all types of outdoor activities including fishing, hunting, canoeing, and boating. Bryant told the students that "It is almost presumptuous to teach someone to write. To learn to write you have to read everything that's been written about good writers." He recommended writers such as Hemingway and Tolstoy and the poetry of Robert Frost, Dickinson, Eliot, and Hart Crane "because he tried so hard." He also urged would-be writers to write - everyday - about "what you know, not what you wish you knew."

Mr. Bryant was asked what inspired him to write and where he got ideas for stories and articles. He answered that almost anything could spark an idea for him - a sunrise, a smile, a rising constellation, and if all else fails, the drive for money and employer pressure.

His writing career began at "The Daily Eagle" in Claremont, New Hampshire, as a reporter. Bryant originally didn't want to write for a newspaper. He felt that writing magazine articles and books would be more suitable for his talents. He is now convinced that "a little bit of newspaper writing is good for all writers, but too much is not good if it's not challenging." Mr. Bryant advocates a liberal arts background for a career in writing. The mechanics of journalism are easily learned in a few weeks according to Bryant.

Nelson Bryant summed up the business of writing by saying: "Truly inspired writing is like making love. You have to stand naked and take a chance."

COASTAL CAROLINA COUNSELING CENTER

The counseling center at Coastal Carolina views human growth and development as a life long process requiring mastery of the developmental tasks (educational, vocational, and personal-social) that will equip each individual with the coping behaviours necessary for handling these roles and relationships in his next stage of development. The function of the counseling center is, therefore, to strive to help each individual formulate his goals, make his own decisions, and progress toward the fulfillment of his potentialities both at the present and in the future.

The counseling center employs a wide variety of approaches in helping its clients learn more effective and satisfying modes of behaviour including changes in attitudes, feelings, etc.

The center deals with difficulties that include such things as depression, character disorders, phobias, irrational thinking, inter-personal interaction problems, anxieties, vocational and academic problems. The center strives to offer a totally comprehensive service for students by maintaining a close working relationship with other support personnel. If you want to talk, come by the center. It is located in the Financial Trailer M-2.

Coastal Gets New Building

A new library building for Coastal Carolina will soon be a reality. Final revisions are now being made, and hopefully, construction will begin in the summer. It should be completed by September 1976, in time for the fall semester. A meeting was scheduled for Monday, March 3 to iron out the differences of opinions among the planners regarding the interior of the library.

Two of the most notable differences are the glass wall surrounding the circulation desk and the electronic eye at the exit. The glass wall is wanted to cut down the noise level between the circulation desk and the students in the lobby. The electronic eye has been proposed to keep students and others from leaving without checking books out. A drawback is that there will be only one exit and, this will add to the congestion around the circulation desk.

The second floor will temporarily house classrooms and offices until a new classroom building can be constructed.

Then, the library will be able to knock the walls down and easily convert the entire second floor for its use.

SUPPORT YOUR SCHOOL

Chess Club Forming

Anyone interested in joining a chess club, leave a message for either Skip Opalko or Michael Flanagan at Student Affairs Office. Among the proposed ideas is to enter the chess tournaments, and to compete with other colleges on a regular basis. This will give those who are interested in chess a chance to further their knowledge of the game.

WANTED

Anyone interested in working on THE CHANTICLEER Newspaper next year, contact Skip Opalko by leaving a note in the Student Affairs Office with your name, address and phone number. Also, indicate what you would like to do in relation to the paper.

"Anitgore" Going Into Production

The Theatre Department is currently beginning work on their next production, "Anitgore." The play is a modern version of the ancient Greek play. Interesting techniques are being employed in the building of the set and the lighting design. The play will be produced at Coastal during the middle of April.

Several students in the theater department, along with Mr. Jimm Cox, are attending the Southeastern Theater Conference, in Birmingham, Alabama, March 5 through 7. They are going to attend various workshops that will be offered, along with several productions to be presented.

Auditions were held Sunday, March 2 for the proposed summer theater, sponsored by Coastal. Two plays will be produced with the direction of Janie Jones and Jimm Cox. Dr. Jones will direct one play, with Mr. Cox directing the other. All details are not yet available, but watch for final plans to be announced in the near future.

Art Exhibition To Be Held

Coastal Carolina invites you to the Retrospective Graduating Senior Art Exhibit. The exhibit will feature the works of Allen Taylor, Mike Todd, and Janet Trupiano. Both Taylor and Todd are student teachers at Conway High School. Trupiano is the president of the Anthropology Club and a future teacher at Socastee High School.

The exhibit will open Sunday, April 6th, at 3 o'clock in rooms 203 and 204 of the Academic Building. The exhibit will run through Friday, April 11th at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. A reception will be held following the opening on Sunday.

The exhibit is being sponsored by the newly-formed Canterbury Art Club, whose purpose is to promote art awareness at Coastal and the surrounding area. Anyone taking at least one art course is eligible for membership.

The Canterbury Club is named after the sculpture in front of the Williams-Brice Building. The club was originated by instructor Jim Ravoira. The club officers are Charles Wright - president, Robin Skipper - vice-president, Susan Heirholzer - secretary-treasurer, and Connie Myers and Darlene Glover - publicity chairmen.

The club is also interested in community affairs - painting nurseries, hospital wards, etc. Anyone interested in joining come by room 203 and 204 on Wednesday afternoon at 1:20.

Machine Defies Students In Money Matters

By Walter Richardson

"That Damn machine took my money!" How many times have these words echoed through the halls of the Student Union Building, Gym, and the other buildings on campus. If I had all the money those money devouring man-made monstrosities took from us poor students, I would donate 50,000 dollars to the school to get a few of my "favorite" teachers relieved of their posts.

It seems to me that the Lance, Tom, Coke, and Pepsi companies would put some machines out here that would work. What we need is to demand that either we get good working machines or take the machines the hell out. I myself don't like the idea of playing Roulette with my last 15 cents by putting it in one of these one-way piggy banks.

I don't mean to be blowing my own horn, but everytime these deciples of Jesse James take my money, I will continue to do as I have done in the past. I will unplug the machine and turn it around so nobody else will lose their hard earned money. I urge everybody to do the same thing.

Remember, the last time that you really wanted some chocolate covered peanuts. You went and looked all over the place for your best friend so you could borrow 15 cents, you walked so far that you got blisters on your feet. You find him, get your money, and proudly approach this illuminated concession stand. You very carefully put the dime and nickel in the appropriate slot. The selection button lights up. You push button #5 and the thing hums a little, blinks at you a few times, and then stares at you like you were a stupid ass. What a rip-off. Think about it the next time you have to kick the hell out of a machine to get it to work.

Whatever happened to the Monkey?
When did the Stone Monkey go?
Where went the lights and spangled nights
That made it a really big show?
Whatever happened to the funky
Chitchat of its sweet guitar
That told the soul to rock and roll
With a beat of eight to the bar?
Did Mac Davis, Bread and Chicago,
The Who and the Jackson Five
Dig up clues to rattle the shoes
That the Monkey is still alive?
Whatever happened to the Monkey
Is a thing a somebody knows.
The Who pressed Tommy, so go press Tommy
And see how the Stone Monkey goes.
But take a tip from a swami:
The Stone Monkey will reappear;
It has the word that the traveling herd
And the longhorns need it here.
Let whoever travels in Conway
With a light and bridges to burn
Go tell the news, the mighty Good News:
The Stone Monkey shall return.

Where Were You Coastal?

Hi you, yeah you, the majority of the Coastal student body. Where were you Friday, February 20, 1975 from 2-6 or from 5-10 p.m. Well you weren't at the right places.

The Spanish Galleon was gracious enough to invite the student body to a free beer blast. To say the least the turnout was very disappointing. With a student body of over 1500 there were only 75 people present. And that's giving you the benefit of the doubt. Of course some of you had a good excuse, you followed the Chants to their respective games. Wrong-o, according to unimpeachable sources, less than a dozen people were either at the baseball or basketball games.

True some of you had to work, but could have at least stopped by for a short one on your way to work. Maybe you had a date say around 7, you still could have made it for a little while.

Coastal Carolina Fishing Club sponsored a trout fishing contest that same night from 5-10 p.m. Only 11 people made it to that event. So, they didn't catch any fish, they did have a good time with some pleasant company. Some people probably went to Cabaret which played for four nights. It can be understood that some people don't dig fishing but there seems to be a lot of interest in the big tournament this spring, everyone wants to be on the team and they can't even make it to a simple evening of light trout fishing. How can the team depend on you for three days when you don't even make it for a simple night.

Okay people, you complain that little old Coastal has nothing to do. But when there is something to do you never come. These are just two of many events that you failed to attend (how many of you made it to see Carolina Alive or go to a basketball game). It has been suggested that the SGA should apologize to both the Spanish Galleon and Doctor Millus for the student body's lack of response. How can you expect anything good to come to Coastal when you don't support what you have now.

Dear Editor:

I would like to inform all college students who are unaware of a fact of life: trees, bushes, steps and any other animate and man-made objects except TRASH CONTAINERS are no place for paper cups and trash. There are plenty of TRASH CONTAINERS around campus. Keep Coastal Campus beautiful and don't be a litterbug$

Growing, Growing, Groan

There is an awful lot of litter around campus these days.....
Coastal is growing.....

You know it is not humanly possible to study upstairs in the library.....
Coastal is growing.....

Where is there a parking space?.....
Coastal is growing.....

Drills, dredges, saws, tractors, machinery, drone, drone, drone.....
Coastal is growing.....

Birds gotta go.....Coastal is growing.....

Trees gotta come down.....Coastal is growing.....

Administrators, many busy, busy administrators.....
Coastal is growing.....

Oh, you have no time for me?.....
But Coastal is growing.....

Gotta get to class early if ya want a desk.....
Coastal is growing.....

Lines for registration...hours, disappointments...course all full!.....
Coastal is growing.....

Bookstore out?.....Coastal is growing.....

By all means, lets have so many buildings you can get lost...lets use all 10 minutes between classes walking to some other building.....
Coastal is growing.....

No, I don't know his name, why should I know his name? I don't know where so and so's office is.....
Coastal is growing.....
Well, Coastal is growing. Big damn deal.

I Wasn't There

by Jimmy Raynor

This is not intended as an apology for students failing to show up for college sponsored events. But to begin, good events are not all that well publicized, for instance the affair at the Spanish Galleon wasn't done well at all. Posters didn't go up until Thursday afternoon. The majority of the students, based on attendance estimates and amount of talk about teams around campus, just aren't all that interested in following the team 40 to 200 miles to away games. There isn't all that much interest in the home games either. As far as the fishing thing I don't really think 11 people is all that bad for such an exciting sport.

The Spanish Galleon didn't offer that beer blast simply because they are so gracious, but rather 1,500 potential customers go to school here. It would be out of place for anyone to apologize to the Galleon for a poor showing.

When what is offered to the student body isn't received well, the fault lies with those who did the offering and how it was arranged. I don't think the way to get people to support school planned activities is to give them average or below average affairs and expect them to support these totally before they get better affairs.

One of the worse features on this campus is that so-called dining room "Cinos". The fact that students continue to eat there show that Coastal people will support anything if its convenient, but if the affair is inconvenient and 2nd class they just won't come out. Its like telling the students they have to eat dogfood for 3 months before they can move up to better meals.

The Georgetown Photographic Society will host its first annual Salon from April 25 to June 14, 1975, at the Rice Museum in Georgetown. It will be a competitive event with cash awards being presented in two categories - Black & White and Color. Awards will consist of $100 for first place, $75 for second place, and $50 for third place in each category. In addition, the Georgetown County Bicentennial Committee will present special awards to those photographs taken in Georgetown County.

Entry is open to all photographers, both amateurs and professionals. There is an entry fee of $5.00 for both categories or $3.00 for one category. The deadline for entries is April 10, 1975. For entry forms and more information, write the Georgetown Photographic Society, c/o The Rice Museum, Georgetown, South Carolina 29440.

Financial Aid Deadline Set For April 1st

The deadline for financial aid applications for both this summer and also the 1975-76 academic year is April 1.

All interested students must re-apply each year, even if they are already receiving financial aid. Adequate funds are anticipated for next year.

Applications will be accepted after April 1, but by law first priority for all awards must go to applicants who apply by the published deadline. Contact the Financial Aid Office for materials.

DOES COASTAL HAVE PROBLEM DRINKERS?

By Michael Gasque

According to a report released last summer by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, 1 out of every 20 students has a drinking problem. The bracket with the highest number of problem drinkers is said to be the 18-20 age group.

Beer and wine have come into vogue as opposed to the use of hard drugs. This could be due largely to the fact that the use of hard drugs often leads to legal problems. Also, they have become more difficult to obtain as compared to the years past.

Those Coastal students who tend to indulge in the consumption of alcohol a great deal might be interested to hear that the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse has developed a 10 question test for possible problem drinking.

(1) Do you think and talk about drinking often? (2) Do you drink more than you used to? (3) Do you sometimes gulp drinks? (4) Do you often take a drink to help you relax? (5) Do you drink when you are alone? (6) Do you sometimes forget what happened while you were drinking? (7) Do you keep a bottle hidden somewhere for quick pick-me-ups? (8) Do you need a drink to have fun? (9) Do you ever start drinking without really thinking about it? (10) Do you drink in the morning to relieve a hangover?

The Institute stated that if a yes answer is given to 4 or more of the questions a drinking problem might be present. However like most things this also has a somewhat brighter side. It is now possible to obtain alcoholic insurance. It is possible for those people who register themselves as alcoholics and are placed under medical care to obtain policies from over 15 companies which will aid them in protection of income loss during the time of their treatment.

STUDENT RECITAL HELD

For those of you who were not able to attend, you missed a marvelous display of Coastal talent. For those who did attend, we are sure you concur when we say it was an hour well spent. The students, under the direction of Carolyn Cox, gave outstanding performances.

Jay Leslie's presentation of Beethoven's Sonata, Opus 25 - Rondo Allegro and David Manigo's interpretation of Beethoven's Pathetique Sonata - Adagio were show stoppers. Dennis Miller's rich baritone rendition of How Do I Love Thee to the accompaniment of E. Carter Breeze brought the house down. During Anne Lee's captivating performance of Copland's The Cat and the Mouse one could envision the stalking and evasion tactics of the two -- so proficient was she. The magnificent finale of Schumann's Faschingschwanz aus Wien strikingly performed by Mike Floyd, rounded off a program par excellence. Our congratulations to the Music Department! You have made Coastal proud and we salute you one and all.

Miss Coastal Scholarship Proposed To SGA

Miss Coastal Carolina, Terry Springs, submitted her ideas on the need for a scholarship for Miss Coastal Carolina to the SGA. The proposed scholarship was directed to a committee within the SGA to study and report on the idea. However, the SGA turned down the proposal basing its rejection on the point that Miss Coastal Carolina represents our school, not for the personal or materialistic gains, but for the honor of being chosen as the Queen.

Flounders Hitting Inlet

The first signs of spring are upon us, and it is not too long until the fish start to make their migration northward to spawn. Already flounder have started to hit in the inlets, as well as some channel bass (spot tails). Outside in the ocean, the trout (summer trout), which stay here in the winter, have started to thin out and are being replaced by croakers. Shad, which start their run up rivers in late February, have been showing in good numbers. Offshore, far offshore around the snapper banks and the Gulf Stream, have been producing good catches of groupers and snappers.

FISHING TOURNAMENT FINALIZED

Final plans are in the making for the Second Annual Coastal Carolina Invitational, which will be held during Spring Break on March 19-22. Sponsored by Coastal and the Greater Myrtle Beach Chamber of Commerce, the tournament consists of teams from Yale, University of Western Ontario, Notre Dame, defending champion Francis Marion, and Coastal Carolina.

The two days of fishing will precede a lecture on the various types of fishing in this area, as well as the types of fish to be caught on the following two days.

Each team is made up of four students and one faculty member, who will fish the Rulf Stream on Captain Juel I, out of Little River, and on the next day, will fish light tackle over Paradise Reef on the "Inlet Princess" out of Murrells Inlet.

Anyone interested in helping organize the tournament, get in touch with Dr. Don Millus in Office 112D, Ext. 169, or Skip Opalko in the Student Affairs Office as soon as possible.

Susan's Lament Shown

Thursday, February 27, Coastal was treated to an excellent slide presentation by Dr. Miles Hayes of Columbia. The program entitled "Susan's Lament" incorporated music and slides to relate the experiences of Hayes' group as they worked along the north-west coast of Alaska.

The presentation covered both scenic and ecological aspects of Alaska. The film was slanted toward the ecological problem of the state.

Beer Bread Has Unique Taste

I have found something that all you Coastal beer connoisseurs might like to know about. It is called beer bread. As you might guess this bread is made with the help of beer and has its own unique flavor. It is made as follows:

Needed: 1 cup Bisquick, ¼ cup beer, 1 teap. sugar.

These ingredients should be mixed until a sticky batter forms. The batter is then spooned into a buttered muffin pan and baked for 15 min. in a 400 degree oven or to such time that the tops have turned golden brown.
